

London Weekend 2014

A weekend, Friday evening -> Sunday, in London. Not just to introduce Explorers to the capital's heritage and places of interest, but also to acquaint them with navigating their way around a strange city, including the use of public transport, as preparation for the day when they are old enough to take off on their own.

“So where did you go when you were in London?” friends asked. And the best answer was “Everywhere!”. Our team of 11 intrepid Explorers plus 2 Leaders enjoyed an action-packed weekend navigating all around the Capital, taking turns to find their way from one attraction to the next. A Scout hut floor at The Fort near Sydenham, provided a convenient base, allowing us to make the most of the time in the city.

Our itinerary included the HMS Belfast, Tate Modern, Southbank & Millennium Bridge, O2 Arena, Cutty Sark, a river boat trip, the London Eye, Big Ben, Downing Street, Trafalgar Square, Covent Garden, Pizza Hut, West End, many journeys on the tube / train / DLR – and that was just Saturday. Sunday featured the Science Museum, Green Park & a quick call in at Buckingham Palace...

By the time we boarded the coach home, we were ready for a rest! Thank you to everyone who involved with this exciting & rewarding weekend.
